MISSION PLAY COMPLIMENTING PADRE SERRA TO BE PRODUCED BY GARNET HOLME IN OUR OWN FOREST THEATER

CARMEL is to have a real Mission Play of its own. The author is to be Garnet Holme, who will produce it near the end of July in our own Forest Theater. It is founded on the life and death of Father Serra, and so that it shall be historically accurate, Mr. Holme has been collecting his data for years. The play has already received the approval of historians, as well as other representative people in

Here Serra Lived and Died

San Francisco, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Stockton, Pasadena. Among other local people who are standing sponsor for the production are Prof. D. T. McDougal, Dr. H. W. Fenner and P. K. Gordon.

Underlying the whole thought of the play is the motto, "Here Serra lived and died," and it is the intention of Mr. Holme to bring to the northern part of the state, as to a permanent annual pilgrimage, this play combining the romance, traditions and history that cluster around the days when the beloved Serra was doing so much to colonize and civilize this part of the country.

This production is to be unlike any other dramatic event ever given in Carmel, inasmuch as while it is a Carmel community affair, the leading part will be taken by a professional of national reputation. There will be a total cast of sixty or seventy people. The play will be divided into four acts and will have the old Mission setting. It is expected that it will play for at least three nights. Carmel will probably do with this production as it has always done in the past—get behind it and boost it to the limit.

Municipal Problems Which Demand Mobilization of Residents of Carmel

No Time Should Be Lost in Providing Fire Protection and a City Hall---Suggestions Which Would Prove Solution of City's Most Immediate Requirements.

CARMEL is growing rapidly—and will continue to grow. Since the town was incorporated, and particularly since the streets running north and south were paved, the permanent population has doubled, perhaps more than doubled.

Something like 150 dwellings and stores have been erected in the last three years, and the permanent population is estimated to be from 1,000 to 1,350. The assessed value of improved and unimproved property is about $500,000.

With the condition of affairs as outlined in the foregoing paragraph, it must be very evident to the most casual observer that the town government's provision for fire protection has become absolutely and emphatically inadequate.

We have a chemical fire extinguisher of a size that is used on every floor in any factory. Frequently it has to be drawn for blocks by men, because there is not a motor truck available. It cannot be attached to an ordinary passenger auto.

Should a dangerous fire break out at night it would be just as well to leave the contraption in the fire house. It would never get to the fire in time to do any good. And should a big fire turn loose in this town—with our present "protection"—just grab your insurance papers and "beat it."

We have another municipal problem.

At present the town is paying a monthly rental of thirty dollars for a storeroom which by courtesy is called the city hall. It's a city disgrace.

Why, there isn't even sufficient space for citizens to assemble to hear the proceedings of the trustees. There is no water in the building, nor are there sanitary conveniences. Office room is lacking and there is need of space to properly file documents and safeguard the city's books.

Now, for a way to remedy these shortcomings:

It has been proposed that on the ballot for the municipal election in April a proposition be submitted to the voters calling for the issuance of $10,000 in bonds, the money derived therefrom to be used to purchase a motor-driven "fire department on wheels," and to build a municipal building.

In the recent bond issue the city acquired all of Block 69, on Ocean avenue. It is on this property that a building for the city offices could be erected and a fire house as well.

The city is now paying $360 a year rent, which amount is 6 per cent on $6,000—nearly enough to pay the interest on the bonds.

It looks like a good business proposition to build a city hall and fire house on the city's own property and pay part of the interest on the bonds with the rent saved.

And this is not all. The postoffice is in need of new quarters. It has now reached the limit of expansion in its present quarters; more lock boxes are demanded; more help is imperative; some day carriers will have to be provided for. The department at Washington is even now seeking new quarters.

What to do?

It has been suggested that the city might build to accommodate the postoffice and lease it for a term of years, this revenue also to apply on bond redemption. It is likely, however, that should the postoffice be included a $15,000 bond issue would be necessary.

These are real living local issues to which the citizenry should give serious thought. Talk them over with trustees and friends. The Pine Cone invites and will be glad to publish your views.

Do you wish this proposition to be placed on the ballot at the April municipal election?

ALICE GENTLE SCORES TRIUMPH IN CONCERT DE LUXE AT MONTEREY FOLLOWED BY RECEPTION IN CARMEL

THE four hundred and fifty men and women who braved the cold within and without to attend the Alice Gentle concert at the Monterey Theater last Saturday night were well repaid for their discomfort. The warmth and sincerity of the applause which greeted every number on the program of this highly talented singer and charming woman was high testimony of the esteem of her audience. Had the temperature been nearer normal the theater would have been filled to capacity.

The program was one which would have been impossible for any save the very greatest of artists, since it called for every phase of vocal expression, and the artist met the demands of delicacy of lyrical shading and beauty of soft tonal qualities as easily as the more intense episodes.

Her dramatic reading of the "Habenera" from "Carmen" was enthusiastically received. "How's My Boy," which came in the last group sung, was a revelation in emotional expression. Her singing of Tom Cator's "To Ramona" was most charmingly and artistically rendered and, of course, the applause brought forth not only the singer, but the composer as well.

The names of Miss Alice Seckels and Selby Oppenheimer appeared on the program as promoters of the Alice Gentle concert, but Hal Bragg did about ninety per cent of the work. That-a-boy!

Reception to Miss Gentle by the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts

"The truly great are always gracious and democratic." The truth of this observation was never more evident than when Miss Gentle was meeting her admirers at Arts and Crafts Hall here after the concert.

One would think that after a strenuous evening's work a singer would be desirous of nothing so much as rest—and to be alone. Not so Miss Gentle. She was animation itself, with a smile and a pleasantry for all. And it is no secret that she thoroughly enjoyed the refreshments. A lady was heard to inquire, "How old is she?" The reply was, "She's not old—she's young."

The Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts is to be commended for arranging the reception to this great artist.

Miss Gentle's parting words to the writer on Saturday morning were, "I want you to say to the good people of Carmel that I am not 'spoofing' when I say that some day I hope to make this beautiful place my home. You'll do it, wont you?

COMPENSATION DE LUXE

A Pat on the Back That Didn't Hurt a Bit Nor Cost a Penny

Newspaper publishers are more used to condemnation and adverse criticism than to commendation, so that when a few kind words do drift along they feel repaid for some of the knocks. A friendly pat on the back is reprinted in full from a recent issue of the Watsonville Register, one of the best and most influential papers published in the Santa Clara Valley:

"A NEWSPAPER OUT OF THE ORDINARY

"Pine Cone of Carmel Unique Paper in Field Peculiarly Its Own

"A newspaper that fits its environment like the paper on the wall is the Carmel Pine Cone. It is as different from the ordinary newspaper as the city of its publication is from the ordinary municipality of its size and in precisely the same manner and degree.

"The Pine Cone is an 8 page paper of four columns width. Its pages are long and slender like the graceful pine tree from which its name is derived. Editor Overstreet and his assistants are scrupulously particular to maintain the makeup, both typographically and from a literary standpoint, in keeping.

"No effort is made to cover outside news. The larger and more pretentious journals are daily arrivals. The space in the Pine Cone is devoted entirely to the intimate happenings of the beautiful and romantic little town of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Carmel is a secluded retreat sought out and patronized by the world's most noted authors and creators.

Editor Overstreet says that at the present time there are no fewer than ninety persons who have achieved fame in the world of art, science and letters, who claim Carmel as their home. The Pine Cone publishes each week a summary of their activities. The paper is quiet, dignified, conservative, but withal progressive.

That it is satisfying to the fullest degree what is without doubt the most discriminating reading public, size of population considered, in the world, is its own best praise.

Interesting World Tour Is Planned by Mrs. R. J. De Yoe

It is not given to us all as the years mount up to retain the love for travel and adventure which is usually so much a part of youth.

Mrs. Rose J. De Yoe is starting from New York on February 11 for a most interesting trip, one which will include the Canary Isles, Madeire, Cadiz, Madrid—then Algiers, Athens, Venice, Cairo, and other Mediterranean ports. From Cairo she will take the trip up the River Nile to the First Cataratt at Assouan. Later on in her itinerary will come an extended tour of the Holy Land, including Jerusasem, Gethsemane and Assyria.

Mrs. De Yoe may extend her trip in order to see France and the battlefields. In that event her home-coming, which she is now planning for May, will be postponed.

Anyone who had seen Mrs. DeYoe's eyes light up as she says "Think of the joy of spending a whole day in Venice," would feel no hesitancy in prophesying for her a joyful journey. Carmel and the Pine Cone wish her a happy time and a safe return. May everything be even more beautiful and interesting than she expects it to be. May she never miss a boat—or a meal.

When you go away, have the Pine Cone sent to you. You'll enjoy it.

NEWS NOTES

Miss Charlotte Perry and Miss Portia Mansfield are now occupying the large Cooke residence. Their dancing school will open its three months' course next Wednesday.

After a two months' stay in Carmel Mrs. Carl Hoffman is returning to New York. Miss Laura Dierrsen, went with her as far as San Francisco, where she will remain for a brief period.

A dinner party, followed by an evening of music was held at the Blackman home last Sunday evening. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Burton, Mrs. C. Cheevers and Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead.

While not definitely decided upon, it may be taken for granted that the summer plays at our Forest Theatre will be "Caesar and Cleopatra," July 2, 3 and 4; Garnet Holme's "Serra," July 21, 22 and 23, and Cator and Newberry's "Aladdin," some time in August.

POINTS OUT HUSBAND'S DUTY

Writer Insists No Man May Stand in the Light of His Wife's Domestic Ambitions.

"Puzzled husband" writes us that he is sorely tried by his wife's ambition to bake the family bread, and other things. His domestic affection and spirit of chivalry will not permit him to tell his wife the truth—that the bread is almost as heavy as a paving stone and quite as indigestible. So he goes to work every morning with a heavy heart and an even heavier stomach, and is bedeviled with gripes and abdominal pains all day, Greene M. Farley writes in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Not only that, but his wife is a constant reader of domestic science departments and she uses him as an experiment station. This last week, he says, he had biscuits that would do for sinkers on a fish line and an angel cake that could not be differentiated from old putty. The heartrending feature is that she asks him with a bright smile how he likes it all, and he cannot find it in his breast to tell the truth about it; so he lies frankly and wholeheartedly.

All this is getting on his nerves and on his stomach and on his conscience. In the course of a little time he feels his life insurance is going to be due.

Should he tell her the truth, or should he suffer in silence and let her go ahead and collect the life insurance?

If life is worth anything to him he might conclude to tell her the truth and let her go ahead and procure her divorce. She might find a second husband with a cast-iron digestive apparatus and the present husband ought not to stand in the way of his wife's career as a domestic scientist.

Seed Distribution by Congress.

Tulips, narcissus and hyacinth bulbs, to the number of 325,000, sent out by the congressional seed distribution this year, were grown at home. Work of the United States Department of Agriculture in its Puget sound gardens has shown that that region is adapted to the cultivation of the so-called Dutch bulbs, which, in the past, have been almost entirely imported.

SHRINES BEYOND ALL PRICE

United States Has Many That Are Inexpressibly Dear to the Hearts of the People.

This old Plymouth church belongs to the noble dead, to the living only as trustees, but by way of pre-eminence it belongs to the generations that are as yet unborn. Civilization journeys forward partly on books, partly upon the memorial days of great men, who are builders of the state, upon organized laws and finally upon historic buildings.

No one can fully value the influence of the Temple in Jerusalem upon the Hebrew state. In like manner the Parthenon was like an invisible teacher, whose strong hands shaped the plastic soul of the Greek race. There are half a dozen buildings in Great Britain, including Westminster abbey and St. Paul's, and to take those buildings out of England's life would be like taking the intellect out of man's body.

The people of the United States have but a brief history, only three centuries, but they have Independence hall, Mount Vernon, that shaft at Gettysburg, Faneuil hall, Old South church, Lincoln's house and shrine at Springfield, and old Plymouth church, priceless shrines for the American people.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Mexicans Are Great Walkers.

There is a saying in Europe that the Spaniards are the champion walkers of the world, and certainly their descendants in America, the Mexicans, are the champions of the new world. Three nights every week there is a concierto in the main downtown plaza in Monterey and nearly all the Americans in town, including many big, husky transients on the way to or from Tampico, sit on the park benches and watch in wonder while the Mexicans walk.

All the young people in town, it appears, walk around and around and around that plaza, the boys in one direction and the girls in the opposite direction, while their parents and chaperons and a few aged people share the benches with the husky Americans.

This Monster Was Battler.

The curators of the Launceston and Tascanian museums have presented to the Royal Society of Tasmania the preliminary account of a nearly complete skeleton of a gigantic extinct monster, recently discovered in the pleistocene beds of Tasmania.

The animal was as large as the largest existing rhinoceros. The new discovery shows clearly that it was a rhinoceros-like animal, with a skull built for aggressive warfare, and at least one powerful horn on the snout. Evidence of the gigantic battles in which this animal engaged is to be found in the complete smashing and partial mending of the collar-bone, and in the crushing and subsequent repair of the bones of the nose and snout.

The highest thoughts that come to us are the first-fruits of loving moods, which bear the stamp of holiness.—Marian Dudley Richards.

A hypocrite despises those whom he deceives, but has no respect for himself. He would make a dupe of himself, too, if he could.—Hazlitt.

Enforcible Laws Must Be Held in Reverence

Let reverence for laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in schools, in seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from pulpits, proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice. And in short, let it become the political religion of the nation; and let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

WHEN THE PAPER DOESN'T COME

(An Adaptation)

My father says the "Pine Cone" is a veritable fright,
He finds a lot of fault, he does, perusin' it at night.
He says there aint' a single thing in it worth while to read,
And it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people really need.
He tosses it aside and says it's strictly on the bum—
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

He reads the small "Pine Needles" and he snorts like all get out;
He reads the social doin's with a most derisive shout.
He says they make the papers for the women folks alone,
He'll read about the authors, and he'll fume and fret and groan;
He says for information it doesn't have a crumb—
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

He's always first to grab it and he reads it plumb clear thru.
He doesn't miss an item or a want ad —this is true.
He says they don't know what we want, the durn newspaper guys,
"I'm going to take a day some time an' go an' put 'em wise;"
Sometimes it seems as tho they must be deaf and blind and dumb—
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

The GARDEN BEAUTIFUL

BULBS.

The Carmel woods are so full of the many wonderful varieties of Wild Bulbs that a very little effort will reward the lover of flowers with a regular wild flower garden. They grow well under large shrubs and trees and make the dark spots colorful. There are most wonderful lilies all over the country roundabout, and shy little woodland stars and bells and cups most delicately made by great Nature. Even the Fairy lanterns respond most graciously to transplanting.

You could also plant any amount of Daffodils, Narcissi, Snowdrops, Scillas, Anemones, Ranunculus, Freezias, Hyacinths, Jonquils, Tulips and many more of the Bulb family. The Matilleja Poppy (Romneya Coulteri) is a grand perennial poppy from Southern California, where it grows well on rocky hillsides. It adapts itself very well, however, to domestic life. It has magnificent large white flowers centered with a great bunch of yellow stamens. When first established it soon spreads to bushes or clumps of large size. The flowers resemble large peonies and are fragrant like a Primrose.

Carmel-by-the-sea can be made one of the most beautiful garden-spots of the world. To do this requires the concerted action of its property owners and guests that first of all the native trees and shrubs be protected against vandals. Then the planting of trees and shrubs along the streets should be done in a systematic way by the town government and also be maintained by the same. For the cost of this, each lot should pay its tax, which would be insignificant indeed; then a local club or a city planning commission should take under its wings the artistic construction and planting of home gardens and the construction of homes, which need not be costly. They should, however, harmonize with the simplicity of the woods and the seashores, which should be artistic and in good taste. Greasy oil paints for house walls should be discouraged, and a simple, clean architecture of homes be encouraged, to the end that all kinds of horrible gingerbread be kept away from our beautiful woods.

Now is the time to take hold of this, now, while we are at the beginning; and it would be easy to dream of a wonderfully beautiful Carmel-by-the-Sea of the future, even far more beautiful than the one of today.

IN THE WORLD OF MUSIC

THE KEY BOARD

Five-and-thirty black slaves,
Half-a-hundred white,
All their duty but to sing
For their Queen's delight,
Now with throats of thunder,
Now with dulcet lips,
While she rules them royally
With her finger-tips!

When she quits her palace,
All the slaves are dumb
Dumb with dolor till the Queen
Back to Court is come:
Dumb the throats of thunder,
Dumb the dulcet lips,
Lacking all the sovereignty
Of her finger-tips.

Dusky slaves and pallid,
Ebon slaves and white,
When the Queen was on her throne
How you sang tonight!
Ah, the throats of thunder!
Ah, the dulcet lips!
Ah, the gracious tyrannies
Of her finger-tips!

Silent, silent, silent,
All your voices now;
Was it then her life alone
Did your life endow!
Waken, throats of thunder!
Waken, dulcet lips!
Touched to immortality
By her finger-tips.
—William Watson (Collected Poems —John Lane Company).

Madam Helen Stanley, eagerly awaited by music lovers, will give her only recital in the region about the bay on Monday afternoon, January 23rd, being the first of this year's Alice Seckels Matinee Musicales. This will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel St. Francis, converted into a salon, where the artistic and friendly environment which has been established for concert goers at this series, will prevail. Following Madam Stanley in February, will be the new Chech violinist, Vasa Prehoda; in March a joint recital by Cecil Fanning and Yolando Moro, the South American pianist; in April no less a personage than Percy Grainger.

Miss Seckels has put a limited number of tickets on sale for each event for out of town residents. Following the concert, all who desire, gather together to meet the Artist of the day as well as other famous artists who are in the City at the time. A number of Carmel and Monterey folks will wend their way to these very delightful events.

Alexander Sebald, the Hungarian violinist who made his New York debut recently, is the only man wielding a bow who has played the entire twenty-four Paganini "Caprices" without rest. He wields a bow with an arm of steel and produces a tone as soft as velvet and as sure as death.

Madame Nova Berri, the distinguished and versatile coloratura soprano, has arrived from New York and will establish a studio in San Francisco. She is an artist of distinctive personality, beauty of voice, beauty of artistry, beauty of imagination and impression. Her concert repertoire embraces arias from famous operas, in addition to many old and new classical favorites. Madame Berri's temperament, which is so marked a feature of her singing, finds a most congenial medium in folk and character songs. A unique feature of her art is that she not only sings but furthers the interpretation of her songs by gorgeous costumes that give color to the period and character she is interpretating. Indian, Spanish, Colonial and modern are her favorite impersonations.

Vagrant Impressions of The Pine Nut

SEVERAL of the old-timers have been kind enough to say that they liked the "Nut's" invasion of fields historical. And many of them have hinted at some little reminiscences of their own which might bring a chuckle from the surfeited denizens of Carmel, all of which would be most acceptable as an inspiration to further vagrancies. This is all encouraging. It was thought about time to diminish the supply of "nut food," lest it become more cloying in the future than in the past, but a woman never stops until she's finished, and sometimes not then. There! The Pine Nut's identity was almost disclosed. Were it not for a disposition to ramble so, the matter might still remain a "dead secret."

Concerning A Deal in Nondescript Realty For a One-Hoss Shay

When the statue of Bishop Francis Asbury, the first American Methodist bishop, and, with Bishop Coke, the founder of the M. E. church in the United States, is unveiled, Washington will have a total of 15 equestrian statues. The statue of Joan of Arc was unveiled in Washington only last week. London now has 16 and Paris 15. Philadelphia runs Washington a close second with 11, while New York comes third, with 8; Gettysburg has 6; Chicago 5; and Boston 3.

But, seriously, now, I wonder how many people realize the value of a little well-timed appreciation. When we get some kindly encouragement, especially when we are doing our best, we fairly burst with importance, and we get up and go at it all again with a new supply of "pep". Why, we just get fat on it. That's why Bill Overstreet has always been so thin. What with the Board of Trustees talking so much about the Pine Cone going out of business without the city printing, and Bill Jones kicking because we gave him a Pine Needle to the effect that he had spent a week-end out of town, and Sarah Smith indignant because we had made a mistake of one cent on her bill—and having stood all that for seven years—it's no wonder Bill's thin. I've lost quite a few pounds myself since I went "Nutty", but I'm still encouraged to continue.

By the way, I wonder if those nice merchants who own those colorful signs on the road to Monterey realize the pain they cause those of us in Carmel who have the "artistic temperament," and this village is just full of that kind. I believe that if one of those merchants would suddenly do away with his signs, the people of this community would be so exuberantly grateful that they'd fairly flood the good man's store with business. We're not at all peeved with you for putting them there—I suppose that all goes with concrete roads and other marks of progress, and we must take the bitter along with the sweet—but we'd be eternally grateful to you if you'd take them down. I'll tell you what we'll do. The first merchant to remove his signs will get the biggest piece of free advertising from us that we can give—and that's straight goods. But you'd better let us know, because most of us try to look the other way as we go by them, and we might not see the change immediately. You really can't blame us for feeling this way. If you had picked out a place to live where the Great Painter had painted all the pictures, wouldn't it kind o' hurt your feelings to see one of his beautiful views marred by an ugly splash of red or yellow smeared across the middle of it.

Lots of communities don't give a rap, but we do. We want that beautiful road to be the most restful, inspiring thing around here so that the beauty-loving tourist will be good-natured and will spend his money like a prince when he reaches our village. When I go over to Monterey and back, and have to look all the time at that gorgeous array of soap-box art, I'm just plum disagreeable by the time I'm ready to buy my fifteen cents worth of cake for my evening repast, and I'm not half as temperamental as some I might mention.

Aw, go on, Mr. Merchants! Take 'em down! Do! Please! And don't forget that I mean what I say about that Ad. I'll surprise you. I sure will. I'll just tell the world. Who's the first? Going Going!! Gone!!!

I'll guarantee that if those signs had been there in the old days, Cam Powers' horses would have run away long before they did, and Bill Kibbler never would have traded in his buckboard for those lots. He has such a beauty-loving soul that the first trip he made across that hill would have given him the Willies.

Did you ever hear about that transaction? I mean about the time Mr. Kibbler and Mr. Devendorf took a whack at frenzied finance. Well, it was so good that it will bear repeating.

Mr. Kibbler was in business in San Francisco—he also did a good line of politics on the side—and he had an old buckboard, which, sad to say, "had seen better days". In fact, like a good old worn-out horse, it was eating its head off in a storage warehouse to the tune of two-fifty per. So Mr. Kibbler cast about for a means of getting rid of the responsibility. When he told me of the incident he said, "I didn't know what to do with the dam thing." Can you beat that? And from our God-fearing Mayor too. Well, he inserted an Ad in the For Sale column of one of the San Francisco dailies and real promptlike, in came a cheery, pleasant-faced, alert man of business who introduced himself as J. F. Devendorf.

Negotiations started. Each party to the transaction was wary, skillful, jealously guarding his own interests. Try to see and appreciate the fine issues involved. Mr. Kibbler had bought his buckboard for $250, (second hand) and then used it for a number of years, and of course didn't want to lose heavily in the trade—for a trade was what Mr. Devendorf was after. You see, Mr. Devendorf had a lot of property down in this neck of the woods, but he had no way of getting to it, and what's still worse, he didn't have very much money. No wonder that he was eager for Bill's buckboard. It was indeed a pearl of great price. But was Mr. Kibbler to be caught as easily as that? Not while he owned the buckboard and could still Kibble. He fenced and parried and finally compelled Mr. Devendorf to confess that his lots were in Carmel.

"Where the hell's Carmel?" Bill questioned.

Mr. Devendorf almost wept as he saw the chances of the buckboard vanishing, so he took a last chance and invited Mr. Kibbler to come over and be his guest on the Fourth of July. He may have thought to confuse the owner of the buckboard by waving the Stars and Stripes around him violently during his stay, so that Mr. K. would fall for the lots more easily. You all know those third degree methods.

Mr. Kibbler told his wife all about it and they decided to make the trip. Now, you couldn't make me believe that Bill Kibbler plays poker now, but I'll wager my new Spring hat against a bad penny that he did then, for he decided on a most artistic game of bluff.

"We'll go down there to this man's little week-end party and have a good time, but you keep quiet about lots," sez he to his wife. "Just let me do all the talking. I'll show him how to jip me out of my perfectly good buckboard."

They came, they saw, and the joke of it was that J. F. D. conquered, although Mr. Kibbler didn't run up the white flag immediately. That came after the second trip, when the police were begging Mr. Kibbler with tears in their eyes to use his influence with his wife to keep her from building her window boxes over the sidewalk. It took all of Mr. K.'s political influence, and his full stock of diplomacy to keep them from arresting Mrs. Kibbler for maintaining a nuisance. It sounds worse than it was. Pedestrians have a queer way of objecting to a stream of dirty water running down their backs from window-boxes above. They get very unreasonable at times and Mrs. Kibbler at last got tired of it, so it was really she who weakened first. She had visions of a place in Carmel where she could garden, undisturbed by rude officers of the law.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XL.—MONTANA

THE mention of Montana history immediately brings to mind the Custer Massacre as one of the most dramatic incidents in Indian warfare. It occurred in 1876, the Centennial year, when special emphasis was being laid on the cause of peace throughout the world. The Sioux Indians had been driven into Montana by the gold miners, and the United States government took steps to force them back into their reservations. General Custer, with less than 300 men, set out to round up the tribes which were on the warpath, and at the Little Bighorn river, was ambushed by Sitting Bull and 3,000 warriors. Custer and all his troopers were killed. Soon after this massacre the Indians were defeated and many of them fled to Canada.

Gold was discovered in Montana as early as 1852 by the half-breed Francois Finlay near Hell Gate river. This, however, created little stir and it wasn't until five years later when John Silverthorn discovered gold in quantities, that mining settlements sprang up in the mountains. This region had been part of Nebraska territory, which in 1863 was subdivided and became a portion of Idaho territory. The next year it was organized as the separate Territory of Montana.

Virginia City was the capital and here in 1865 was issued the Montana Post, the first newspaper of the state. In 1874 the capital was changed to Helena and ten years later a state constitution was adopted. The state was not taken into the Union, however, until 1889.

Montana comes from the Spanish adjective meaning "mountainous." Its area is 146,996 square miles, making it the third largest state of the Union.

er," in Ross, a wonderful place in Marin county. On the night of the performance Mr. Holme was so touched with the fine work and sincerity of the cast that he was inspired to write a poem—excerpts from which are given below.

Mr. John Catlin, San Francisco attorney and man of letters, afterward illuminated this poem on parchment and it now hangs in the assembly room at Ross.

THE DREAMERS

The garden lies asleep beneath the stars.
A breeze from off the hill rustles the trees.
Our little stage is silent, and the throne
Of Pharaoh stands cold and unoccupied.
Gone are the quaintly costumed players,
The unseen music and the voice of Time,
And now the mountain fairies come and gaze
At the green theater where the children played.
The actors are all home and safe in bed
After their day of Sacred History.

Joseph, the Dreamer, lies awake; his mind is full
Of day-dreams, of the time when men's applause
Shall greet some worthy action done by him.
"Oh, would that I," he thinks, "could help them all
As did the shepherd lad I played today."

And now let's take a peep at Benjamin,
Just by the head there is a shadowed light,
And we can clearly see his happy face.
A gentle smile ripples across his lips;
He moves his head a little, as to hear
Some wondrous message from a far off land.
An angel tells a heavenly fairy tale,
And in his sleep the lad draws near the Lord.

The gardener dreams and sees a garden fair,
Where he sows seeds and makes the garden grow;
This time they're children, and he wonders much
Seeing his beds so full of boys and girls,
Who wave at him and, laughing, cry aloud,
"What do you think of us? We're a new kind
Of rose. Some people call us 'Gifts o' God!'"

The kindly master of the house half wakes
And thinks he hears the song of many birds;
Looks out to see what's happening, then calls out,
"Oh, precious 'Gifts o' God,' today I saw
You in your play and I loved you, all;
And now you come to thank me in my dreams.
I know that I'm asleep and soon must wake;
But when I do, I shall remember still
Your pretty pageant and the lovely way
You come to thank me, little 'Gifts o' God.'"

So the night passes and they all must wake
More ready now to face the world with love,
Because they played a dream, then dreamed a play.

Notice to Property Owners

Who are contemplating painting their roofs—will be wise if they use the Kelly Iron-Clad Roof and Metal Paint. This paint is composed of oxide of iron, U. S. Navy pine pitch, asphalt, coal tar, and a substance which is entirely a new discovery by me, it never having been used in trade before outside of this paint. It will not blister, scale or crack, for it dries by chemical action. It forms a coating which is positively water and weather proof. It does the work of both cement and paint in one application. It penetrates through the old paint, filling all pores, making a solid and durable surface, lasting five or six years. The work will speak for itself. A word to the wise. Vagrant Impressions of the Pine Nut where her garden wouldn't be confined to a few sickly geraniums in window boxes on a top flat within earshot of a city's whirl, where she could plant roses and lilies and vines and young onions and have ground enough to give the little roots a chance to spread around and be happy, so with many misgivings on the part of her spouse, the deal was finally consummated. Devendorf was the proud possessor of the buckboard and Kibbler owned two lots at Eighth and Monte Verde, and didn't know what he was going to do with them, now that he had them.

When Mr. Kibbler came to this part of the story, he had that cold calculating look in his eyes that he has when he's figuring how much premium he can get on Carmel city bonds. "Do you know," he said regretfully, "I'll never forgive myself for not getting the whole water front in exchange for that buckboard. I could have just as well as not for Devvy wanted it badly." Bill will never get over that wasted opportunity. It will becloud his whole life. Not even the joys he gets from teaching ladies how to back their cars out of his garage can ever offset that bitter memory. The tragedy of it is intensified by Mr. Devendorf's own point of view. Sez he, "I'd have given him anything he stuck out for if he'd only known it, but he took those two lots just as easy,—although I'll admit that he kicked at being so far from town."

Then too Mr. Kibbler gets an extra brand of grouch when he has to admit that Mr. Devendorf stuck him further when he palmed off the other two lots on him—the one's facing Lincoln—for $125 apiece. Well, well, it's all very sad. This world is full of tragedies like that. Who would think to see Mr. Kibbler call the Board of Trustees to order—and with such a cheery face—that his past life held a sorrow so deep? Isn't it so that we never know what cross our next-door neighbor is carrying? Life is indeed just one damn thing after another. Sad, sad, but true.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

"Chinese and Americans have a closely similar sense of humor, whereas Japanese and Americans have not," says Witter Bynner, who spoke recently at St. Marks-in-the-Bowerie, New York. Mr. Bynner has just returned from a year's trip, his second, to China and Japan, and has studied Chinese and Japanese life intimately, also in California. His subject was "The Relation Between Pan and Christ", and he referred to his conception of Pan as set forth in his book, "A Canticle of Pan". Mr. Bynner spoke of the Pan spirit among Orientals, as evidenced in their happy reverence toward nature, more particularly in China than in Japan.

A novel which has received an award from the French Academy is not to be treated lightly. A novel with a foreword by Edward Garnett is equally sure of respectful consideration. When, as in the case of "The Life of a Simple Man", by Emile Guillaumin, the introductions are brought together, we may feel very sure that we have a book of more than usual interest. It is in fact a human document, absorbing and surprising in its truthful and unaffected revelation of the line of a French tenant farmer. The background is the picturesque Old World scenery. The life is none too well known to us, since most French literature which has been brought out in the United States has centered about Paris.

V. W. F. Collier, author of "Dogs of China and Japan in Nature and in Art," has made the study of local canine races his hobby during fifteen years' residence in the Far East. He concludes, from a comparison of the literatures of the subject in the West and in the East, that here must have been constant exchange of views and a closer connection between experts all over the world than previous authors have shown. But it is quite clear that even before such intercourse was possible, the Chinese had developed dog breeding of all sorts, and for all purposes, centuries before the thing was dreamt of in Europe. The Chinese science of dog-breeding, notably of Pekingese and toy dogs, as here set forth by Mr. Collier, must be of great interest to the Western dog lover.

"Some people get their great moments in youth, some later, some even in old age. It's like writing stories. Peter Gaunt and I quarrel about the happy ending. He hates it, but I tell him that it's all a matter of where you stop. You may end on a high note, when the bells are ringing and the sun is shining. And you may wait until the tests of life come—show your hero and heroine after the end. . . ."

The foregoing quotation from Elizabeth Newports' "The Wings of Time," might be called the keynote of this vivid novel of young life, of true devotion, of life's greatest test and of the final triumph of a courageous girl. The story is unique for its clear-sighted "seeing life whole," and its believing optimism that touches a universal chord.

John G. Whittier, as a small boy, wanted to go to Haverhill to see James Monroe, President of the United States, who was touring New England, in order to bring about that "Era of Good Feeling", which became associated with his name. Whittier's parents, Quakers, objected to hero-worship and kept him at home, so that the boy missed both Monroe and a circus then exhibiting at Haverhill. But going to town next day, the little fellow kept his eye on the ground so that he might at least behold a footprint of the President. By and by he came upon the elephant's track. Eureka! He had seen the mark left by Monroe's boot! He was happy. This incident is related in the new life of James Monroe, by George Morgan.

Joseph Hergesheimer's first novel in over two years is so modern that it could only have been written today, but its subject is as old as the legends of Venus. It is, actually, a legend of the goddess of live, but its setting is wholly contemporary: Lee Randon lost in the fascination of Cytherea, and his wife Fanny; the silvery Mina Raff of motion pictures and Morris Peyton; Savina Grove, relentlessly vital, with her conventional William—are people of our own experience and country. "Cytherea," however, is a novel of love rather than of its shifting forms and expressions: the timeless web of passion woven incidentally in a design of familiar figures and scenes. It has not appeared in any magazine.

TELLS OF PEARY AT THE POLE

Dr. Burton Warms Up on Cold Subject—Takes Boy Scouts Through Arctic Ice

The Carmel Boys' Club met as usual on January 17. After the business meeting Dr. A. E. Burton gave a talk on Peary and the North Pole.

He went to high school and college with Peary and they trained for naval service together. Then Peary went up north and discovered that Greenland didn't extend to the pole.

Dr. Burton accompanied Peary one summer and they went in on the ice about 125 miles to study the glaciers.

He said Peary found some natives with steel arrowheads and steel points on their spears and steel knife blades. They wondered where the steel came from and were shown a big meteorite from which they had chipped pieces They gave it to Peary, who in turn presented it to the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

Dr. Burton then went up a channel to see the glaciers formed. They went in what the Eskimos call a woman's boat—made of skin—and had to look out for floating ice. A piece struck the boat and cut a hole in it, but before a bucket of water could get in the nearest native stuck his foot in it. He said the glaciers move about 30 feet in 24 hours. They slept on the ice and found it very cold. He said Peary spent 30 hours at the pole to verify his discovery. He measured the distance of the sun above the horizon, and as it was the same for 24 hours he knew he must be at the pole. He set up his monument and then came back.

After the talk was over refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned. SCOTT DOUGLAS, Sec.

Pupils of Mabel Gray Young in Recital

A very interesting musicale was given last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mabel Gray Young by several of her piano pupils.

Miss Grace Wickham gave most of the program, and to those who have been following her work showed marked progress. She has a beautiful clear tone and plays with ease and assurance. She was assisted by Miss Jane Foster, Miss Lillias Carroll and Miss Phyllis Overstreet. All reflected credit on their teacher.

Miss Phyllis Overstreet played with especial good expression two numbers of MacDowell, "To a Wild Rose" and "An Indian Lodge."

Miss Wickham repeated her part of the program Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Jeffers to a small gathering of friends. Her program was as follows:

Sonata Pathetique	Beethoven
Salfegietto	Bach
Music Box	Bach
Four Preludes	Chopin
Polonaise—C sharp minor	Chopin

A Word to Property Owners

Why get "faked" every year by having your roof painted with gas tar or a fish-oil paint? There is positively no protection in that kind of roof paint. Prices alone prove nothing in roof protection. Quality and price must be considered together to determine money value. F. B. Kelly's Ironclad Roof and Metal Paint is not gas tar, or a fish oil or any other kind of a "fake" paint. Ironclad will give you your money value in roof protection for 5 to 6 years. A word to the wise. F. B. KELLY, Box 35, Carmel, California.

The Pine Cone can handle that job of printing for you at the right price.

To Make Architecture Harmonize With Environment

Miss Helen Parkes announces her intention of joining her brother, Percy Parkes, in the building business. Her interest in the project is that of trying out experiments in fitting buildings to their surroundings of trees and shrubs, of hill slopes and sand dunes; of working in different building materials, different types of architecture; not to detract from but but rather to preserve the peculiar beauties and larger simplicities of this place. She calls her work in the partnership "Adventures in house building."

Percy Parkes will continue his work as efficiently as ever, which is scientific building construction.

The real mechanical wheels of industry in Carmel are centered about Ocean avenue and Dolores street. There's the Pine Cone presses, Larouette's machinery, Curtis' ice cream freezers, and the late comers in the district are Wilson & Smith, who say nothing but saw wood,

Books, pamphlets, programs, business forms, are printed by the Pine Cone Press.

INTRODUCE A PLANNING COMMISSION ORDINANCE

Board of Trustees Consider Sewer Laterals—Purchase Wall Map—South End Needs Fire Protection—Street Matters Discussed.

An adjourned regular meeting of the city board of trustees, with all the members present, was held on Tuesday night.

Ordinance No. 43, providing for a City Planning Commission, was given its first reading.

W. T. Dummage, on behalf of the sanitary board, reported that the matter of putting in laterals for the Ocean avenue sewer was in hand.

The trustees purchased an up to-date map of the city and it environs, which now hangs in the city hall.

B. W. Adams addressed the board, emphasizing the inadequacy of the city's fire fighting apparatus, and suggested that a station be established in the south end of the city.

Following an informal discussion of street matters the board adjourned.

Miss Edith Chilver's kindergarten will be conducted in the Joy Bells Cottage, Ocean avenue and Casanova street, after February 1.

Miss Chilver, who was formerly a kindergartner in the Los Angeles public schools, has been notably successful in establishing an ideal school for the little folk of Carmel, where they are receiving the benefit of modern educational methods.

May the Joy Bells Kindergarten always re-echo to the growth and fame of Carmel.

A statement of Carmel's municipal financial status is printed on another page. It is a healthy showing and speaks well for the manner in which our public affairs have been administered by the officials.

Philip W. Harrison and son of Modesto are ardent golfers and are at present spending a month at Pebble Beach. The engagement of Robert Harrison and Miss Mildred Wilkins was recently announced.

Erection of the service memorial fountain, dedicated on November 11, has been somewhat delayed owing to the non delivery of rock. The recent heavy rains left the roads out of the quarry mushy. Contributions to continue the work will be received at the Pine Cone office.

The Bank of Carmel seems to be assured. W. L. Brown and B. L. Sharpe, who have the matter in hand, have been here for several days, interviewing residents, many of whom have purchased stock, and most all of whom have agreed to establish accounts. The business should be inaugurated in thirty days.
